

A Prayer for April 28, 2020

Blessed Father of Light and Love,

As we sojourn in this season of uncertainty, Lord, we rest in the belief that you fashioned our world with great love and care, and that you extend your love to ALL. We are yours and you are ours in the best and worst of times. Your word assures us that we can trust in you even during the dark days when we do not understand the cause, the effect, or the outcome. You never slumber nor sleep watching over us, affording us the opportunity to rest in you. We take comfort in your providence.

If your eyes are on the sparrow you certainly have eyes of compassion and concern for each of us... all faiths, around your world. May we demonstrate gentleness to all those who are entrusted to our care during this critical time. Give us discernment on how best to meet the needs of others.

Father God, bestow upon us divine wisdom and guidance. Help us to recognize the need for self-care, prompting us to take heed to our physical and emotional limitations. May the hurting be healed, may the fearful find faith. May we love our families and neighbors with a newness of heart.

Father God, please extend your strength and guidance to all health care providers who are working around the clock, struggling all over the world. May your love for them be a soothing balm as they seek to alleviate the suffering of man. Exodus 15:3 in the Christian text declares, “The LORD is a man of war: the LORD is his name”.

Dear Lord, we humbly ask you to declare war on this virus, and perform your miracle on such a magnitude that the entire world will be in awe of your healing power and boundless love.

Amen and Amen
